Assemblin acquires Lillpite Rör and strengthens its heating and sanitation offering in Northern Sweden

Assemblin has entered into an agreement to acquire the shares in Lillpite Rör AB. The Piteå-based heating and sanitation company has 12 employees and annual revenue of approximately SEK 27 million.

Founded in 2003 and based in Öjebyn, Piteå, in Northern Sweden, Lillpite Rör provides heating and sanitation installation and maintenance services to construction companies, property-sector customers and private individuals. Its offering includes service assignments, bathroom renovations, heat-pump installations and conversions, larger contracting projects, new-built installations and water-meter replacements. The company operates primarily in the Piteå area, with assignments across Norrbotten and parts of Västerbotten.

“Lillpite Rör is a well-established company with deep technical expertise, a diversified customer base and strong local relationships. The acquisition strengthens our local market position and service capacity, enhancing our ability to support customers in Northern Sweden, where major investments are driving demand for skilled technical services,” says Andreas Aristiadis, CEO Assemblin H&S, EVP.

By combining the company’s established local relationships and technical expertise with Assemblin’s organisation, the transaction creates a strong foundation for continued profitable growth. Joining Assemblin will provide Lillpite Rör with additional resources and support for its next phase of development.

“Becoming part of Assemblin gives us greater opportunities to develop our business and continue delivering high-quality solutions to our customers. We look forward to combining our local commitment and experience with Assemblin’s resources and expertise,” says Niklas Ermebring Lillpite Rör.
