Assemblin strengthens its electrical operations in Uppsala by acquiring Lundqvist EL

Assemblin Electrical has acquired the Uppsala-based electrical engineering company Lundqvist EL AB (“Lundqvist EL”) with annual sales of approximately SEK 50 million and 37 employees.

Lundqvist EL was founded in 2001 and offers high-quality electrical service and electrical installations to both private individuals and companies in Uppsala and its environs. Services include installation of lighting, underfloor heating, energy metering, electrical safety tests, solar cells, charging infrastructure for electric cars, data and telecom as well as alarm installations.

“Lundqvist EL strengthens our position in the important local market in Uppsala on both the contracting and services sides, making us more complete there. Together with Assemblin’s own branch office and the relatively newly acquired electrical company J&C EI, we gain a really strong platform in Uppsala and the surrounding area,” says Fredrik Allthin, President and head of the Assemblin Electrical business area.

Lundqvist EL is owned by Johan Lundqvist Götz, who is active as the company’s CEO.

“We have identified several exciting collaboration opportunities with Assemblin’s existing operations in the Uppsala area, and together we can undertake major projects. I am convinced that this step is entirely right for our employees and customers, and look forward to continuing our operations as part of Assemblin,” says Johan Lundqvist Götz, CEO of Lundqvist EL.
